We ask and urge general courtesy; for without it, sidewalks four feet wide become the arena for very irascible conflict. If public original is aminar with the resources of the country. The horticultural and agricultural displays were wholly unsurpassable. The exhibit of field crops, such as corn, wheat care, to such as potatoes, turnips, beets, care os, pumpkins, &c., were unsurpassed by any similar exhibit that has been or could be made in hibit that has been or could be made in the South. Beets two and a half feet long and eight to ten inches in diameter are hard to beat. There was a pumpkin on exhibition that weighed 160 pounds and another that weighed 150 pounds. Ears of corn were as fine as can be grown on the river lands of the West. The splendid reputation which that no reason why a man should be section is making in tobacco was fully the growth of it was unknown until the last year or two.

That class of products which perhaps attracted the greatest attention was the display of fruits. The apples, peaches, pears and grapes were magnificent. The apples took the paim. One county tion and they were as luscious as ever riches of the country and yet the minererals were there in great var ety. Nothing could be more in creating in the pext. A full meeting is argently requeslovers of beautiful displays or to the citizen concerned in the resources of his quires consideration. State than the exhibit of Western North Carolina timbers. Fo ty varieties were prepared with special care and they vere simply superb in bearty and value. No section of county in the world can show more valuable timber and in greater variety and abundance. For hard woods and wood for elegant lurniture this part of the country cannot be surpassed. The timbers, the minerals, the horti-ultural and the agricultural pro-ducts—these were the leading features of the Fair, and in these Western North Carolina can challenge the world." And Mr Hoskins reports; to the Green-boro North State; "The W. N. C. Fair which has been held here this week was in all respects a great success. The attendance was very large, and the exhibits numerous and well selected. The inhabitants "west of the Ridge" are certainly full of life, and push things with vim and intelligence. Asheville itself will not fall short for want of judicious cyclening.
